BERLIN POLICE RAID RED HEADQUARTERS

When the Berlin police raided the headquarters of the Communist party they reported finding documents showing that revolution and civil war throughout Germany had been planned to begin on March 4th. Our picture shows the secret underground storerooms for forbidden literature found by the police in the Communist headquarters.

CAN LAST YEAR'S NATIONAL WINNER REPEAT?

Can Florio, the winner of last year's Grand National Steeple-chase, win the coveted event again this year? According to the odds, Florio stands a good chance to repeat although he isn't the favorite. Our picture shows the fine animal winning from Egremont at the post.

CO-FAVORITE TO WIN GRAND NATIONAL

Griegeloch, famous steeplechaser and former winner of the Grand National race at Liverpool, who is co-favorite with Golden Miller to win the swelling event on March 24th.

BRITAIN LAUNCHES THE STARFISH

Our picture shows the launching of the new British submarine "Starfish," sister ship of the "Seahorse," which were ordered on March 1931. The Starfish and Seahorse were designed by A. W. Jones, C.B.E., the Director of Naval Construction. There are four vessels of the class and they are 137 feet long, 24 feet beam, with a standard displacement of 640 tons.

Grande Prairie Musical Festival Elocution

The following are the selections for the various classes in elocution:

SENIOR CLASS SELECTIONS (From Richard III, Act I, Scene I.)

Now is the winter of our discontent
Made glorious summer by this sun of York;
And all the clouds that lour'd upon our house
In the deep bosom of the ocean buried.
Now are our brows bound with victorious wreaths;
Our bruised arms hung up for monuments;
Our stern alarms changed to merriment,
Our dreadful marches to delightful measures.
Grin-visaged War has smother'd his upbraidings!
And now, instead of mounting barb'd steeds
To fright the souls of fearful adversaries,
He capers nimbly in a lady's chamber,
To the lascivious pleasing of a lute.
But I, that am not shaped for sportive tricks,
Nor made to court an amorous looking-glass;
I that am rudely stamp'd, and want love's majesty
To strut before a wanton ambling nymph;
I that am curtail'd of this fair proportion,
Cheated of feature by dissembling nature,
Deform'd, unfinished, sent before my time
Into this breathing world, scarce half made up,
And that so lamely and unfashionable
That dogs bark at me as I halt by them;
Why I, in this weak piping time of peace,
Have no delight to pass away the time,
Unless to see my shadow in the sun
And dress it in some odd deformity,
And therefore, since I cannot prove a lover
To entertain these fair well-worn days,
I am determined to prove a villain
And hate the idle pleasures of these days.

Lincoln's Gettysburg Address

Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are equal.
Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting-place for those who here gave their lives that the nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this. But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate—we cannot consecrate—we cannot hallow—this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we are here highly resolved that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

INTERMEDIATE CLASS SELECTION The Dying Chief—Mrs. Maclean.

The stars looked down on the battle-plain,
Where night-winds were deeply sighing;
And with shattered lance near his war-steed slain,
Lay a youthful chieftain—dying!
He had folded round his gallant breast
The banner once o'er him streaming;
For a noble shroud as he sank to rest
On the couch that knows no dreaming.
Proudly he lay on his broken shield,
By the rushing Gualadriver;
While, dark with the blood of his last red field,
Swept on the majestic river.
There were hands which came to bind his wounds,
There were eyes o'er the warrior weeping;
But he raised his head from the dewy ground,
Where the land's high hearts were sleeping!
And "Away!" he cried—"Your aid is vain;
My soul may not brook recalling—
I have seen the stately towers of Spain
Like the autumn vine-leaves falling!
I have seen the Moorish banners wave
O'er the halls where my youth was cherished;
I have drawn a sword that could not save;
I have stood where my king hath perished!
Leave me to die with the free and brave,
On the banks of my own bright river!
Ye can give me nought but a warrior's grave,
By the chieftain's Gualadriver!"

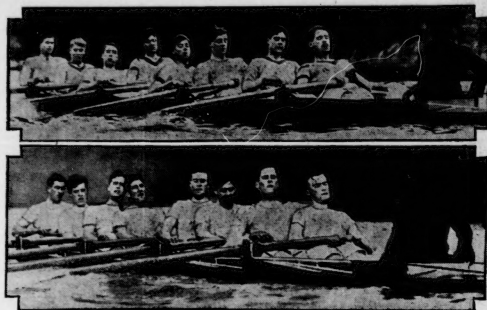

JUNIOR CLASS SELECTION The Doll's Weeping—Eugene Field

The little French doll was a dear little doll,
Tricked out in the sweetest of dresses;
Her eyes were of blue,
A most delicate hue,
And dark as the night were her tresses;
Her dear little mouth was fluted and red,
And the little French doll was so very well bred
That whenever accosted her little mouth said:
"Mamma! Mamma!"
The stockinet doll with one arm and one leg
Had once been a handsome young fellow,
But now he appeared
Rather trowny and leered
In his torn remnants of yellow;
Yet his heart gave a curious thump as he lay
In the little toy cart near the window one day
And heard the sweet voice of that French doll say:
"Mamma! Mamma!"
He listened so long and he listened so hard
That soon he grew ever so tender,
For it's everywhere known
That the feminine tone
Gets away with all masculine ardor!
He up and he wound her with soldierly zest,
But all the replied to him he professed:
Were these plaintive words (which perhaps you have guessed):
"Mamma! Mamma!"
Her mother—a sweet little lady of five—
Vouchsafed her parental protection,
And although stockinet
Wasn't blue-blonded, yet
She really could make 'gy objection!
So soldier and doll were wedded one day,
And a moment ago I journeyed the way;
I'm sure that I heard a wee baby voice say:
"Mamma! Mamma!"

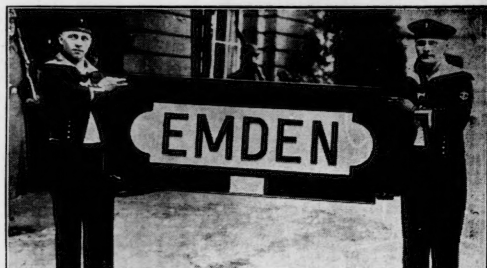

FRANCE'S GIGANTIC HARBOR SCHEME TAKES SHAPE

The above picture shows the harbor developments in the port of Bordeaux, France, and gives an excellent impression of a section of the new docks. This is part of a big scheme which will enable France to accommodate herself with ease to the expansion of the sea-borne traffic.

READY FOR ENGLAND'S ROWING CLASSIC

Here are two fine action pictures of the Oxford and Cambridge crews in action as they prepared for their annual race, one of the greatest sporting events in Great Britain, ranking with the Derby and the Grand National. The Oxford crew (top) reads: Thomson, Mosler, Crum, Courchman, Hogg, Bakes, Elmes and Holdsworth, stroke. Komarski-Va-Nature is the coxswain. The Cambridge men are: Sunbell, Gilmour, Carboneil, Wylie, Sergel, Lutton, Fletcher, and Thomson, stroke. Wheeler is the coxswain.

AUSTRALIA MAKES GOOD-WILL GESTURE TO GERMANY

This picture shows two German sailors holding the "Emden" map, which was presented to President von Hindenburg of Germany by the Right Hon. Stanley Bruce of Australia. The German raider "Emden" was destroyed by the Australian cruiser "Sydney" in November, 1914, and the map of the German vessel had been in Australia ever since.

WHAT, NO SWASTIKA?

Immaculately attired in his morning clothes and top hat, Chancellor Adolf Hitler, Germany's Nazi Dictator, is pictured as he left the memorial services for the nation's dead, held in Berlin recently. This is one of the few pictures of Hitler without his brown shirt, ornamented with the Nazi swastika emblem which has now become a symbol on the national flag.

Automatic Stool Pigeon

In a Cleveland machine shop the electric eye constantly reports every move of a machine worker. If he shuts down a machine a red light flashes the news to the foreman's office and records idle time until the power is again turned on. If he pulls a wrong lever the move is recorded on a tape. The speed of the machine is also recorded. The introduction of the device speeded up the factory 53 per cent.

WIFE (to hubby, whose adder has fallen). "Try and hand on for a few minutes, dear, while I pick these tidbits."

HOLY WEEK, APRIL 10TH-14TH

Over the weekend to a certain great temple there are carved these words: "Whosoever your Faith, and Remember that for thousands this is a Holy Place."

For centuries past Holy Week, the week before Easter Day, has been observed as a time of preparation for the great festival of the Resurrection of Christ.

The congregations of Christ Church (Anglican) and St. Paul's United Church will combine for a series of special services next week, leading up to Good Friday.

The services will commence at 7:30 each evening. In Christ Church, and the public are invited to participate in this commemoration of the Passion of our Lord.

It is hoped that these evening's will be held by all the community as a sacred to the memory of Him who gave His life for humanity, and will be fittingly observed by attendance at these services.

The local ministers of the two congregations will conduct the services and will be assisted by laymen and visiting ministers. The addresses will be given by the following ministers:

The ministers of St. Paul's and Christ Church combine in an appeal for the keeping of Holy Week as a time of quiet and prayer, and dedication of lives to the service of Christ. The world is in a time of spiritual renewal, and such renewal depends very largely on the prayer and spiritual life of the individual. Is there a more fitting time than this season for the individual to dedicate his life to the service of Christ upon them?

Whosoever your Faith, and Remember that for thousands this is a Holy Place.
